My name is Amber Allmann and I am a college student at Cal Poly SLO. I am pursuing an elementary teaching career and am challenging myself to use my creativity into a business. I enjoy taking ideas from other people and creating something new. My company may be small, but I can guarantee that every product I send out, will be made with love and put as a priority. I really appreciate everyone who helps support small businesses!

Woodburning is something that sets me apart from other craft businesses. Anyone can buy a Cricut machine and print out vinyl stickers, but it takes steady hands and patience to woodburn. This is something that I can personalize easily for anyone who is interested in a specific design. Using my Cricut machine, I can cut out my fonts and designs, but I hand trace everything on to the wood piece. This is something I thoroughly enjoy and am proud of every piece!
